

GMC

Social responsibility

GMC emphasises its contribution to sustainable development in the society the Company is a part of. The objective of our HSE policy is to ensure we do not cause any damage to people, material assets, or the environment. GMC complies with the international ISO standard for social responsibility, ISO 26000, which provides guidance on how companies can act socially responsible in accordance with the demands of society.

Activities useful to society:

- We support ideal organisations, sports teams, etc., where employees contribute with voluntary work.
- We sponsor selected cultural and health promotion arrangements.
- We bring onboard a significant number of apprentices every year.
- We have an active drug and alcohol policy and wish to assist employees with addictions through our AKAN arrangement.
- We bring onboard people for work training via NAV (Norwegian Labour and Welfare Administration) and other similar organisations, people whom for different reasons cannot secure normal employment.
